From The Deacon’s Desk...
The author of the letter to the Hebrews likens the daily life of the Christian steward to a race, a long-distance race perhaps, certain¬ly not a sprint; requiring endurance and a single-minded focus on Jesus at the finish line. Good stewards are firmly committed to live the Christian life to the fullest, to keep their eyes focused on Jesus. They don’t grow weary or lose heart. They know there is immense joy waiting for them at the finish line.

Escuchamos al autor de la carta a los Hebreos comparar la vida diaria del corresponsable cristiano a una carrera, tal vez una carrera de larga distancia, ciertamente no de velocidad; que requiere resolución y decisión enfocadas en Jesús al final de la línea. Los buenos corresponsables están comprometidos firmemente a vivir la vida cristiana plenamente, a mantener sus ojos enfocados en Jesús. Ellos no se cansan o se desaniman. Ellos saben que hay un inmenso tesoro esperándolos en la línea final. ¿Estás comprometido plenamente a vivir cada día por Cristo?

Question of the Week

Key Passage: Jesus said to his disciples: “I have come to set the earth on fire, and how I wish it were already blazing! Do you think that I have come to establish peace on the earth? No, I tell you, but rather division.”

Question for adults: What do you think Jesus meant by “setting the earth on fire” and causing “division”?

Question for children: What is one way you can be closer to Jesus today?

Pregunta de la Semana

20ª Domingo —Lucas 12:49-53

Pasaje Crucial: Jesús dijo a sus discípulos: “He venido a traer fuego a la tierra, ¡y cuánto desearía que ya estuviera ardiendo! ¿Piensas acaso que he venido a traer paz a la tierra? De ningún modo. No he venido a traer la paz, sino la división.

Pregunta para los adultos: ¿Qué opinas Jesús entiende por “ajuste de la Tierra de fuego” y causando “división”?

Pregunta para los niños: ¿Cuál es una forma en que puedes estar más cerca de Jesús hoy?”

Happy Birthday: August 12, Clark Hackney; 16, Christina Worley; 24, Erin Warnick.

Wedding Anniversary: No anniversaries recorded for the month of August.

We lift up to the Lord in prayer all those who seek healing through the peace of Christ, especially Marge Swearengen, Cecilia Savage and Homer Poor.

We pray too, for those who struggle with grief or addictions and those who labor to provide our well being and freedom especially first responders and military, and for those separated from their loved ones and family. For each of them, may the promise and the gift of the peace of Christ fill their hearts and minds, and may almighty God always provide their every need.

Belleville bishop says Catholic church needs more connection to black struggles
By Editor, Catholic News, August 10, 2016

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch) The Roman Catholic church is too timid and too silent about the racial inequalities that make African-Americans suffer, Bishop Edward Braxton of the Belleville Diocese argued in a speech Monday night that was critical of — but hopeful for — the church.

On the eve of the second anniversary of the police shooting of Michael Brown in Ferguson, Braxton admonished the church overall for failing to engage African-Americans enough as more black men die from police shootings, such as Alton Sterling and Philando Castile.

“Sadly, I know many African-American Catholics who do not believe that their black lives matter in the Catholic church as much as white lives matter,” he said.

The church is frequently not even welcoming enough to its own African-American members, of which there are few — and it’s not surprising why there are few, said the bishop, himself black.

“This lack of a history of dialogue underscores the difficulties that the church faces today when it attempts to evangelize the African-American community,” Braxton told the audience of about 400 at the Cardinal Rigali Center in Shrewsbury.

He said they’re quite happy in their Baptist, Pentecostal, Jehovah’s Witnesses and Islamic houses of worship.

“It has been late in the game to change that scenario. Nevertheless, we should not abandon our effort, and part of our effort should be to understand the Black Lives Matter movement,” he said.

Braxton urged the audience to take action to heal the country’s racial divide in whatever capacity they can, to not remain aloof. To quote Mother Theresa, he said, there’s no excuse for doing nothing. “Everyone can do something,” he said.

After his speech, several African-Americans stepped up to the microphone to thank the bishop for voicing aloud an issue they say they have long struggled with themselves, but that their own churches have almost never discussed.

Retired deacon Leslie Johnson Sr. of St. Alphonsus “Rock” Church narrated to the audience how, when he showed up at a Catholic center for deaconate training, the people there directed him to the kitchen instead, because they assumed he was “the help.”

“I still feel like an outsider in my own Catholic church because of the color of my skin,” said Johnson. He agreed with Braxton that the church remains too silent on the issue of race. “And the silence is killing us,” he said.

Debbie Stovall, 66, of Chesterfield, said after Monday’s event that Braxton’s call to action — which was to “listen, learn, think, pray and act” — will be challenging for her, but important.

She agreed that communities like hers that are relatively secluded from African-American struggles need to listen to their stories of discrimination, but people tend to “go back to their lives” after they hear them. She also agreed with Braxton that the church frequently dodges the issue of race.

“Sometimes, the priests don’t want to have controversy. I think that’s kind of wrong,” she said. “We need to be confronted. We need to be uncomfortable.”

Connection, continued

The church is frequently not even welcoming enough to its own African-American members, of which there are few — and it’s not surprising why there are few, said the bishop, himself black.
