“NO COST” ANNULMENTS

Older folks remember that once a couple married in the Catholic Church and lived together, the marital bond was in place “till death we do part.” In the last forty years, the Church has come to recognize that some marriages were just "not right" from the beginning. When a marriage breaks up and the civil divorce is final, marriages can be considered for a church annulment.

Unfortunately, there are lots of rumors and poor information when it comes to annulments: "it takes years" or "thousands of dollars" are required. In truth, most cases are decided within a year and the suggested marriage tribunal fee was $450; and that fee could be waived for those in financial difficulty. That tribunal fee did not "buy an annulment" but it did help to pay for tribunal salaries and expenses.

On May 30th, Bishop Lennon announced a new policy for the Diocese of Cleveland: all annulment cases will now be accepted and processed free of any charge. The Diocese of Cleveland will fully subsidize the work of the diocesan marriage tribunal. This new policy is effective immediately.

The form of Catholic marriage is free consent given before a priest/deacon and two witnesses. For those who require an annulment from a former marriage, please contact the priest/deacon of your choice and he will help you prepare and file your case—now free of charge!
Back in August, after several comments were noted from parishioners regarding the use of incense at particular liturgies, I offered a column of catechesis, indicating reasons for the Church’s use and its regard for this ancient liturgical action and sign. Whether or not you prefer the use of incense, the column was very well received (by each opposing side). In that same spirit, given a concentrated background in liturgy, I hope to offer similar catechesis on several aspects of our faith and worship — “why we do, what we do.”

Human nature has proven, as creatures of habit, we can, at times, lose a sense of intentionality concerning anything we do with great repetition, and our reception of Holy Communion is no exception.

A Muslim man, struck by the seeming indifference he witnessed Catholics receive Holy Communion, once approached a Catholic friend, asking him if he really believed that the Host was God Himself. The Catholic responded, “yes, of course.” The Muslim paused for a moment, thinking it over. “If I believed that was truly Allah, then I would crawl up on my hands and knees, bowing my head to receive Him.”

This “outsider’s” observation is remarkable, and should cause each of us to reown a sense of attentiveness as to what, and how, and Whom we are receiving.

The General Instruction of the Roman Missal asks each country’s Conference of Bishops to determine the posture to be used for the reception of Communion and the act of reverence to be made by each person as he or she receives Communion. In the United States, the body of Bishops determined that Communion should be received standing, and that a bow of the head is the act of reverence made by those receiving. These norms may require some adjustment on the part of those who have been used to other practices; however, the significance of unity in posture and gesture as a symbol of our unity as members of the one body of Christ should be the governing factor in our own actions.

Those who receive Communion may receive either in the hand or on the tongue, and the decision should be that of the individual receiving, not of the person distributing Communion.

If Communion is received in the hand, the hands should, first of all, be clean. If one is right-handed the left hand should rest upon the right so that the communicant receives with his or her dominant hand. The Host will then be laid in the open palm of the left hand and then taken by the right hand to the mouth. If one is left-handed, this is reversed. It is not appropriate to reach out with the fingers and take the host from the person distributing. We do not take gifts when they are offered, we receive them. Flat and open hands should be presented, and raised (to the degree that one is able) and not deliberately lowered, cupped, and half-closed. A communicant’s intention as to how they wish to receive, whether on the hand or upon the tongue, ought to be made plainly known.

To each person approaching, the minister distributing Communion says, “The Body of Christ,” nothing more and nothing less. This formula should not be altered, as it is a proclamation which calls for a response of faith on the part of the one who receives. The communicant should audibly respond, “Amen,” and not before the minister has finished the proclamation, “The Body of Christ.” The communicant’s “Amen” not only indicates his or her belief that this small wafer of bread and the wine in this chalice are in reality the Body and Blood of Christ, but that they themselves are a member of the body of Christ.

When one receives from the chalice, the same proclamation is made by the minister distributing Communion, “The Blood of Christ.” Again, the response is given: “Amen.” It is never permissible for a person to dip the Host he or she has received into the chalice (intinction). If, for some reason, the communicant is not able or willing to drink from the cup, then that person should receive only under the form of bread. Whether or not a communicant receives only the Host or only the Precious Blood, he or she has fully received the Body, Blood, Soul, and Divinity of Christ. However, just as it would be rare not to be offered something to drink at a formal meal in someone’s home, Holy Communion received under both forms remains a fuller sign.
